5. In addition to these large sleeping cars, the plant manufactures small railroad cars for the Soviet Union.

6. Copy of a "dispatch report" of the Ammendorf Plant, and a photo-graph showing express train cars delivered, are forwarded.

* a. The production of armored trains was also reported by other sources. These other sources did not mention the Soviet Army as the recipient, but reported that the armored trains were delivered to the Soviet zone German People's Police.

 b. The production of sleeping cars and small railroad cars was also reported previously. It can be seen from the "dispatch report" of the Ammendorf Plant (see annex 2) that 159 express train cars were delivered to the Soviet Union in about nine months in 1949. Thus, the monthly production quota of 15 express train cars (see para 2 of the report) was exceeded by three or four units. These express train cars have a hydraulic device which can convert them to the Russian wide gauge in a very short time.

c. The reported plant is a Transmash Soviet Corporation Plant. The Russian inscription on the express train cars (as shown on the photograph) is to be noted.
